

The Motivated Presenter

At a Glance

Create immediate impact in your next presentation by attending this short, focused program with executive presentation coach and trainer, Kathy McAfee. You'll come away from this half-day program with a better understanding of how to capture and hold the attention of your audience without relying on PowerPoint slides. Your confidence and communication effectiveness will improve with the new tools, skills and techniques you acquire through this program.

Outcomes	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Better Prepared. Increase your focus and readiness in less time with the Clean Sheet Thinking presentation planning tool.2. More Engaging. Make your point and motivate your audience with more compelling and relevant stories.3. Stronger Start. Hook your audience from the very beginning of your presentation with more creative and compelling opening remarks.
Design	Learning is facilitated through high-engagement and interaction. Participants will receive instruction, demonstration and the opportunity to experiment with one new tool, one skill, and one presentation technique. Content will be taught through a mixture of storytelling, demonstration, group discussion, partner exercises, video examples, and coaching critique for volunteers. Short breaks and fun activities will help keep participant energy high.
Target Audience	High-potential emerging leaders, team leaders, technical professionals, and subject-matter-experts, any of whom give frequent presentations, internally or externally. Learning experience is enriched when group is comprised of people from different departments and disciplines.
Class Size	This half-day program can accommodate up to 25 people. No prework required. Participants will be given a printed participant guide and a PDF-reader copy of the book, Stop Global Boring .
Formats	The Motivated Presenter series is available in other formats including small group transformative two-day workshop, a one-day mastery class, a virtual presentation series, and Lunch and Lead Motivating Seminar. One-on-one coaching (in person or virtual) for leaders or teams preparing for a "high-stakes" presentation.
Instructor	Kathy McAfee works with organizations who want stronger and more diverse leadership pipelines and with individuals who want to be outstanding in their fields. In her role as executive presentation coach and professional speaker, she motivates others with her mastery of communication, connection and personal branding. A graduate of Stanford University and a Certified Master Practitioner of Neuro Linguistic Programming (NLP), Kathy is the author of multiple business books including Stop Global Boring, Networking Ahead, and coauthor of Defining You, and Sharpening Your Point. Learn more at http://www.americasmotivator.com/about/

